

My sister, Jodi, was always laughing or singing, which made it almost impossible not to be happy when she was around. Jodi, our brother, Jim and I had the best time cheering for the University of Kentucky's football team over pizza in our apartment on December 29, 1999. I remember the date because this was the last day I saw my sister. She was killed two days later on New Year's Eve by a drunk driver. My hope is you will remember her smile before you get behind the wheel. Please don't drink and drive.
